Join us to learn more about Roman Aldborough, Roman Britain and the Roman world.

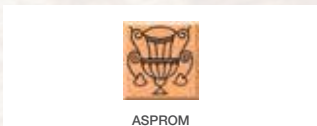

We have a varied series of talks and visits each year. Talks by leading experts cover all aspects of life in Roman Britain and the wider Roman world. They give members new and exciting opportunities to discover more about the Roman past and to share their knowledge and expertise.

FORA is very privileged to work with Cambridge University on the 'Aldborough Roman Town Project' which has been running for several years. Aldborough was known as Isurium Brigantum in Roman times and was a civitas capital, an important civilian and administrative centre.

The work done by Cambridge shows that our understanding of the site is constantly evolving and exciting new discoveries are continually changing previously held ideas.

Talks are held in Aldborough village. There is ample free parking.

FORA is a member of the following organisations:
